8 January 1985NIE 20.41/11-85: The Western Alliance: Allied Perspectives on the USSR

Will examine the extent to which US allies differ with the US and among each other in their policy prescriptions for responding to the Soviet challenge and will assess the degree of consensus on the issue in the various nations.

NIE 12.5-85: Hungary: The Future of Kadarism

Will assess whether the Hungarian leadership will be able to continue Kadar's reformist course while maintaining the external and internal stability that has characterized Hungary since the 1960s.

NIE 12-85: Eastern Europe: Tension, Diversity, and the Pursuit of National Interests

Will assess the degree to which East European leaderships may attempt to cope with growing economic and social pressures by pursuing their national interests to the detriment of their relations with other East European states and with the Soviet Union; will examine whether the policies of individual countries could revive historical enmities and create new rivalries that will affect the cohesion of the Warsaw Pact.
